If you finance this contract with a loan and later revoke it, you are no longer bound by the loan agreement, provided that both contracts form an economic unit. This is to be assumed in particular if we are also your lender or if your lender makes use of our cooperation with regard to financing. If the loan has already accrued to us when the revocation takes effect or when the goods are returned, your lender will assume our rights and obligations under the financed contract in relation to you with regard to the legal consequences of revocation or return. The latter does not apply if the financed contract has as its object the acquisition of financial instruments (e.g. securities, foreign exchange or derivatives). If you want to avoid a contractual commitment as much as possible, make use of your right of revocation and also revoke the loan agreement if you are also entitled to a right of revocation for this.

Where you give an Incoming Credit Transfer order as a payee, the Bank shall be liable to you for the correct transmission of the Incoming Credit Transfer order within the agreed execution times. In case of failure to transmit the order as agreed, the Bank shall immediately re-transmit the Incoming Credit Transfer order in question to the payment service provider of the payer.
